USE OF RIG SYSTEM FOR RESEARCH PUBLICATIONS DATA

The University of KwaZulu-Natal has replaced the IRMA system with a new Research Information Management system called RIG@UKZN, which stands for Research Inspiring Greatness at UKZN.

The system will be opened for use during September 2018. In particular, the Publications and Ethics modules will go live.

Going forward, the University will use the RIG system for the management of its research information. The current phase of implementation focuses on the following:

- Submission of research output claims to the Department of Higher Education and Training for subsidy purposes.
- Compilation of Research Outputs for Institutional purposes, including the Annual Research Report.
- Generation of management information for planning, surveys, assessments, etc.
- Administering and processing of Research Ethics Protocols.

The UKZN Research Community is invited to attend Publications training workshops on the use of the RIG system. A notice regarding the Ethics Training schedules will be issued in the coming weeks.

Training will be held on all five campuses. You are welcome to attend any training session at your convenience. All UKZN researchers are required to understand how to use the RIG system. You are strongly encouraged to attend the training workshops. The training sessions will be conducted in computer labs, where you will be exposed to using the system hands-on. You are welcome to bring your personal laptops.

NB: Bookings for the training is essential and can be made via: <https://training.ukzn.ac.za/>
