DID YOU KNOW?

Tea bags were created by accident

Although Brits are famous for their tea obsession, it was an American who ultimately revolutionized the leafy drink. New Yorker Thomas Sullivan is credited with creating tea bags. He would send samples of the product in silk bags and people started to throw them into the teapot. And, that's how tea bags came to be. The rest is history.

Pretzels were once a symbol of love

During the 17th century, pretzels came to symbolize undying love. According to lore, in 1614, a Swiss royal couple used a pretzel in their wedding to seal their bond, and some historians believe this is where the saying "tying the knot" came from.

Mageirocophobia is a real thing

Afraid of whipping up a meal? You might have mageirocophobia, also known as the fear of cooking. Sounds super scary but it's fairly common.

Cotton candy was created by a dentist

Weirdly enough, cotton candy was invented in 1897 by a dentist. He partnered with a confectioner, and they created cotton candy, which at the time was called "fairy floss." Eventually, another dentist created a similar fairy floss machine in 1921 and called the confection "cotton candy," which stuck better than the previous name.

Thought for the Day!

Silence & Smile

Smile is to solve problems
Silence is to avoid problems

IN-DEPTH, UKZN'S NEWEST CORPORATE PUBLICATION

Sanibonani,

It gives me great pleasure to introduce In-Depth magazine, UKZN's newest edition to our flagship corporate publications suite housed under the Corporate Relations Division.

True to its name, the title will delve deep into the many pockets of excellence at the University and deliver those news to you in a thought-provoking, inspiring manner that reflects a fresh perspective and diligence on our part. As opposed to our existing news publications, In-Depth offers a unique insight into the University of KwaZulu-Natal.

While the plan is to release In-Depth a few times a year, as per my Editor's Note in this edition, we will play this by ear due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, which continues to wreak havoc across social and economic sectors, but definitely be on the lookout for a second and last edition for this year (2021).

We hope you enjoy reading the first edition of In-Depth and want to hear from you if you have feedback or positive news/developments that you think we should feature in the publication.

Limited printed copies will be available soon and you can request a copy via email.

Thank you,

Normah Zondo

Executive Director (Acting): Corporate Relations Division
